

Captain Martin Louw

Captain Louw started his career with the SA Air Force in January 1973, as a pupil pilot. He spent 22 years in the SAAF as a fighter pilot, flight instructor, staff officer and project officer for airborne weapons systems, rising to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

In 1994 he resigned from the SAAF and joined Kentron as international marketer and later IST as project manager. He joined Comair as a first officer in 1996 and has since served as Chief Training Captain and Fleet Captain on B727, Chief Pilot, Executive Manager Flight Operations and Director Operations from 2003 until May 2019. He still serves on the Comair Board as an executive director and has been seconded to Comair's IT partner Nacelle as Managing Executive Airlines.

Captain Louw still flies actively as a captain on the B737, including the Max.